

Born in Manchester a longer time ago than Peter. Started a musical career on piano at age 12 but tired of metronomes which never worked and took up drums at 15. Left school to join the Civil Service but found it to be irreconcilable with hair length and pencil tapping abilities.

Left to become professional percussor and played with friends for three days before joining five bands simultaneously. Experienced identity crisis by attempting to play rock, blues, cabaret, funk and folk styles, but became normal again after joining 10cc.

Became increasingly normal after six years and as many albums with 10cc and looks to Jethro Tull and the Snipe bog as a means of becoming deranged again.

Paul is married and lives near Marple, Cheshire with wife Gill and son Adam.
